Developing WWM Teaching Tools

The museum has been busy developing a collection of teaching tools to be used by educators during museum visits. We have been working with organizations, such as Alaska Fish and Game, to acquire materials and information. Not only have we incorporated these teaching tools into our museum but also the museum website on the Media page under the heading of "Museum Resources".

Some of the new teaching tools are various Alaskan fish identification charts, a sensory animal identification task exercise and the WWM Quick Quiz. This quiz was developed with the help of a 9th grade student from Greensburg Central Catholic High School. You may access the WWM Quick Quiz online to test yourself and then on your next museum visit see just how well you have scored.

We have also updated our museum tour guide with our newly added exhibits. There is also a PDF version of the guide online under the "Museum Resources" on the Media page.

Plans also include a Multi-Sensory Learning Station. This will be a portable teaching tool that will include dozens of labeled museum artifacts to be used for identification in the learning purposes.

Special thanks to Georgie Scott whom donated her time to the museum to earn her GCCHS community service hours. Her hours were earned through updating the museum guide, helping to develop WWM Quick Quiz and spreading mulch on museum grounds.

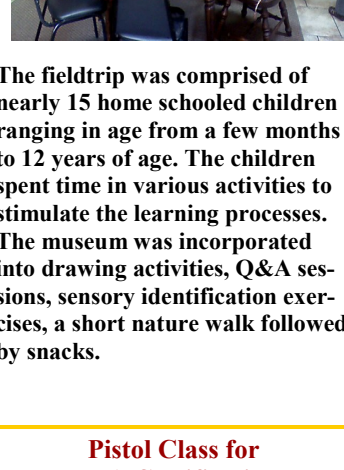

Recent Pistol Class for Certification

In our first NRA Pistol course of the season the women students out numbered the male students almost 2-1. You go girls! 7 people received their NRA certification for revolvers and semi-automatic pistols. Sign up for a WWM Education Course: Intro to Big Game Hunting, First Aid, CPR, Firearm Certification and more. All courses can be built and scheduled to suit your needs.

Special thanks to our supporters and sponsors whose contributions are helping us to expand and further develop our education programs: The Phelps Family Foundation, Dr. Bruce A. Matthews, Dr. Dennis Marcelli and Elisabeth Carlson-Scott.

Circle of Friends Fieldtrip to WWM

The fieldtrip was comprised of nearly 15 home schooled children ranging in age from a few months to 12 years of age. The children spent time in various activities to stimulate the learning processes. The museum was incorporated into drawing activities, Q&A sessions, sensory identification exercises, a short nature walk followed by snacks.
